

The Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program

The Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program

(LIHEAP) provides money to help low-income homeowners and renters pay heating costs. In addition, customers approved for LIHEAP also receive a discounted rate for their gas service.

Who is eligible?

LIHEAP, and related assistance, generally is available to low-income households with incomes up to 150% of the federal poverty guidelines (FPG) or 60% of the state area median income, whichever is less. However, depending on individual circumstances, other households may qualify for the program.

Eligibility for households with incomes between 150% and 175% of the federal poverty guidelines (FPG) is limited to those households with a member who is susceptible to hypothermia, such as elderly, a child under the age of two, or with a doctor's diagnosis.

Additional information about the LIHEAP program – including eligibility requirements – can be obtained at www.mainehousing.org or from one of the following community action agencies:

How Do You Enroll in LIHEAP?

To expedite your application, be prepared to provide the following:

- Names and social security numbers of all people living in your household.
- Proof of gross household income for the last 3 or 12 months (wages, social security, unemployment, pension, and disability payments are all considered to be income).
- Proof of present address (for example, a rent receipt, lease, deed, or property tax bill).
- Recent copies of your energy and utility bills.

Discount Rate

Once Unitil receives confirmation from MaineHousing that your application for LIHEAP is approved, you will receive a 30% discount for your gas service. The discounted rate is not retroactive, but is effective for the next 12 months and will make future bills more affordable.
